Poisonous effects of Stainless steel utencils of Inferior Quality

1703. SHRI HARVENDRA SINGH HANSPAL :
SARDAR JAGJIT SINGH AURORA :

Will the Minister of HEALTH AND FAMILY WELFARE be pleased to state :

(a) whether the use of stainless steel utensils of inferior quality is poisonous for the human body;

(b) whether the Salem Stainless Steel Plant (SSSP) has conducted vigorous laboratory-tests in this regard;

(c) whether Government propose to take any action against the stainless steel utensils-makers which are using sub-standard material; and

(d) if not, the reasons therefor ?

THE MINISTER OF STATE OF THE MINISTRY OF HEALTH AND FAMILY WELFARE (SHRI RAFIQUE ALAM): (a) to (d) Generally, the use of Stainless Steel does not cause any harm to human body. In inferior quality of steel the constituent metals like Iron, Nickel and Chromium can be in different quantities and can leach out during food preparation and storage. Of these, oral ingestion of Iron and Nickel are not harmful but chromium can be harmful if it exceeds the daily intake level. According to Steel Authority of India Limited, the Salem Steel Plant had conducted Laboratory tests for chemical compositions and mechanical properties on some of the inferior quality of Stainless Steel. The question of certification of utensils by prescribing standard will be considered in consultation with the Bureau of Indian Standards.
